The Overwhelmed Life

Signal to Watch: The Overwhelmed Employee

Meet "the overwhelmed employee" — dealing with the flood of information, text messages, tweets, emails, meetings, and conference calls every day.

People check their phones almost 150 times a day, which causes distraction, stress, and general reduction in productivity.

*Research shows that the average office worker can only focus for seven minutes at a time before they either switch windows or check Facebook! (Neurologist Larry Rosen)

- Deloitte 2014 Human Capital Trends Study

Stress in America™

AMERICAN PSYCHOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION

- Teens report that their stress level during the school year (5.8/10) far exceeds what they believe to be a healthy level of stress (3.9/10)
- 42 percent of teens say that they're either not doing enough to manage their stress or they're not sure if they're doing enough.

Assumption:

The Overwhelmed Student (& Teacher) becomes a public health issue

By 2020, students & employees will seek non-traditional solutions to overcome mental wellness challenges

Intentional, accepting and non-judgmental focus

Mindfulness:

Presence

State of active, open attention on the present. Observing your thoughts and feelings from a distance, without judging them good or bad. (Psychology Today)

The 'Business Case' Mindfulness

... may help:

- Notice when a decision should or could be made; See ethical challenges
- Increase goal awareness
- Gathering information and insights; Facilitate option generation
- More Open to Feedback & Collaboration
